PwC and High-Tech Bridge launch innovative web security solution

PwC Switzerland and High-Tech Bridge have announced a strategic partnership to deliver on-demand web security via the security testing platform ImmuniWeb®.

Zurich, 14 July 2015 – PwC Switzerland and High-Tech Bridge have announced a joint business relationship to bring a new and innovative set of web application security services to their clients. The joint business relationship will provide clients with access to High-Tech Bridge's innovative ImmuniWeb® application security testing service as part of PwC's market leading Threat and Vulnerability Management services. In 2015, ImmuniWeb® was named “the most advanced hybrid on-demand web penetration testing” by Frost & Sullivan's Market Insight.

“Today, web applications remain the weakest point in corporate cyber defense and they require special attention. Combining our innovative award-winning technology with PwC’s experience will bring outstanding results to make the web a safer place” said Mr. Ilia Kolochenko, High-Tech Bridge’s CEO and ImmuniWeb® Chief Architect.

“The collaboration will combine PwC’s leading threat intelligence insights, risk assessment capability and operational management skills with the innovative ImmuniWeb® technical security testing service. Together, we can help our clients by protecting their organizations with a continuous and competitive threat and vulnerability management solution,” said Mr. Jan Schreuder, Partner, Cybersecurity Leader, PwC Switzerland.
